How to Communicate Effectively With Adults and Children

“Active Listening”

Home Activities for the Week

To Do:

• PRACTICE “ACTIVE LISTENING” One time during the next week, practice “active listening” for five minutes, either with your partner, your child, a friend, or a colleague. Remember to allow the speaker to finish, listen for the content and feelings of the speaker, and validate those feelings.

READ/REVIEW:

• Handouts and Chapter Thirteen, “Effective Communication Skills” in The Incredible Years book.

Caution: Remember to continue special time!
Home Activities for the Week

To Do:

• CONTINUE PRACTICING “ACTIVE LISTENING” One time during the next week, practice “active listening” for five minutes, either with your partner, your child, a friend, or a colleague. Remember to allow the speaker to finish, listen for the content and feelings of the speaker, and validate those feelings.

• PRACTICE “SPEAKING UP” Once during the next week, practice speaking up about an issue or problem that has been worrying you. Remember to be positive, be clear and brief, be selective, communicate your feelings, and ask for feedback.

PARENT RECORD SHEET: LISTENING AND SPEAKING UP

Describe your responses and your understanding of the speaker’s response to the two exercises.

1. Active Listening
   Example

2. Speaking Up
   Example
• Try to put yourself in the other person's shoes and think about their point of view.
• Maintain eye contact.
• Allow the speaker to finish.
• Listen for the content and feelings of the speaker.
• Summarize and validate the speaker's feelings.
• Encourage the speaker to continue talking.
• Avoid "why" questions.

ABOUT SPEAKING UP

• Choose timing for speaking up—ask if listener has time.
• Be positive.
• Use “I” messages to explain feelings.
• Be clear and specific.
• Be “present” oriented (edit old complaints).
• Ask for feedback.
• Avoid too much negative speaking up—be brief and selective.
• Express positive feelings as well.

Communicating More Positively to Oneself and Children

Home Activities for the Week

🎉 To Do:

• THINK ABOUT a problem that causes you to get emotionally upset. Listen to your upsetting thoughts and describe what you would say or do to change your negative self-talk. Use the “Self-Talk in Problem Situations” worksheet to change some of your negative thoughts into constructive thoughts. Bring worksheet to next session.

• PRACTICE turning negative gripes into positive suggestions. Describe what you would say to stop or change your negative self-talk. Record on the homework handout sheet.

• NOTICE when your child is getting upset and encourage him/her to use Tiny’s secrets.

ABOUT UPTIGHT THINKING

REFRIGERATOR NOTES

• Refute negative labels that may come to mind.
• Avoid speculating about intentions.
• Reute negative labels that may come to mind.

Focus on coping.

Support.

Support your partner or others involved in caring for your child and seek their help.

Don't be self-critical; instead objectify.

Get control of your anger.

Normalize behavior and use flexible standards.

Avoid speculating about intentions.

Paint a positive picture.

Use thought-stopping when tempted.

Mark your whiteboard.

Know where to stop.
• Scan your body for tension, and breathe and relax or do the exercises.
• Notice any negative self-statements and replace them with soothing self-encouragement.
• Ask yourself if what is making you feel tense is really that important? Will it make a difference a week from now? A year? When you are 70?
• Visualize some marvelous past event or dream of the future.
• In the middle of conflict, breathe, cool off, get playful, or get away for a few minutes.
• Take a break (go for a walk, take a bath, read a magazine).
• Avoid griping, criticisms and “put downs”.
• Use a “stop action” when personal anger seems to be escalating out of control or getting nowhere.
• Stop and dispute negative thoughts. Substitute coping or calming thoughts.
• Be polite with others by focusing on the positive, on what you can do rather than what you can’t do.
• Think about the other person’s needs and point of view. Recognize that everyone’s problem is legitimate.
• Focus on fixing the problem, not the blame.
Tips to Being Polite

1. Say what you can do and what you want to do. When possible, avoid statements referring to what you can’t do.

2. Focus on the positive. Stop complaints. Imagine a situation where your child tries to clean up the dishes but gets water all over the floor. Or think about a father who makes dinner but leaves the kitchen in a mess. In these situations, the adult has a choice: to complain and criticize or to edit out the complaint and give an honest statement of appreciation for the effort made. “Gee, it’s great to have the dishes all cleaned up. Thanks for taking the time to do that.” (If a messy kitchen is an important issue for a parent, s/he can always decide to discuss it at a later time.)

3. Edit self-criticisms. An adult has a fight or loses his temper and then realizes that s/he was wrong. S/he might say, “I’m a rotten parent. Why do I always lose control and get angry?” Instead, s/he could edit these put-downs and say, “I was wrong for saying that. I’m sorry. What can I do to make things better?” “That wasn’t a good idea. Let’s think of a better idea,” would also be constructive self-statements. The point is to focus on the mistaken ideas or actions, to accept responsibility for error but not to devalue oneself as a person. Everyone makes mistakes. It is important to model this attitude for children in an appropriate manner and provide positive alternatives for future behavior. For example, a parent might say, “Next time I’ll try to stay calm” or “Another time I’ll go outside for few minutes rather than get so angry.”

4. Focus on the present and edit out “old business.” Avoid digging up old events and unloading old conflicts. These tactics only complicate the problem and raise the anger level of everyone involved. Remember, “unloading” tends to occur most for people who don’t communicate about problems as they arise.

5. Think about the other person’s needs and point of view. If a person finds s/he is thinking only of him/herself those thoughts should be edited. It would be useful to decide, instead, to think about what one’s spouse/partner or child needs. For example, “I wonder if he is feeling left out because the new baby is taking so much of my attention. Perhaps we should get a sitter for the baby and go out.” One of the most powerful responses a parent can make to a complaining child or spouse/partner is, “Gee, I see your point. What can we do to make things better?”
Brainstorm/Buzz—Practice Coping Thoughts

Practice turning the following negative and irrational thoughts into coping thoughts:

<table>

<tr>
<td>“My child is a monster. This is ridiculous. He’ll never change.” (negative labeling)</td>

<tr>
<td>“I should not have done that...” (unrealistic expectations)</td>
<td></td>

<tr>
<td>“No one will see my skills, I’ll never get a job.” (exaggerating)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
1. Identify your negative thoughts when they first occur. Pay attention to how your body feels (for example, tenseness, fidgeting, anger, headaches).

2. Use one of the following constructive thoughts to replace the negative thought.
   - STOP the negative thought—“think STOP.”
   - Dispute the negative thought;
   - Substitute a positive thought or self-praise;
   - Substitute a coping or calming thought;
   - Use humor;
   - Think about a future time when this will not be a problem.

Non-constructive Thoughts

“Jack never helps. All I get is work, work, work. I fix the food, take care of the house, the kids, everything. Boy, would I like to throw this at him!”

“After working 10 hours, I’m tired and frustrated. When I get home, all I get are hassles. The kids interrupt and yell, and Joan criticizes me. This place is a mess. What does she do all day? I feel like screaming or walking out of here.”

Constructive Thoughts

“I’d better watch it and calm down before I do something I’ll regret. What I need is help. Maybe if I ask Jack in a nice way, he’ll give me some help. That’s the best way. Then maybe I can have a relaxing bath.”

“Take it easy now. Take a few breaths. What I really need is a few minutes of peace to relax and read the paper. Maybe if I ask Joan nicely to play with the kids while I read, then I could give her a break and play with the kids later. She needs a rest too. That’s the most helpful way. I can already feel myself relaxing.”

“I can handle this. I can stay in control. “She’s just testing the limits. My job is to stay calm and help her learn better ways”.”

SELF-TALK IN PROBLEM SITUATIONS

Identify a problem situation and the upsetting thoughts you have at the time. Write down some alternative calming thoughts that you might use to redefine the situation. Next time you find yourself using negative self-talk, give yourself some time to think positively and consider the alternatives available to you for dealing with the situation.

TIME OUT FOR PARENTS WHO ARE ANGRY

All parents and couples when stressed find themselves losing control of their anger from time to time. Therefore, it is important to establish a Time Out procedure for yourself just as it was important to set one up for the children. The following are some steps to interrupt the anger cycle:

1. Be aware of cues that signal increasing anger.

Anger increases progressively rather than appearing full-blown, therefore it is important to be aware of signals you are getting that tells you your anger is increasing. For example, such signals can include physiological changes (rapid breathing, increased pulse rate); or cognitive thinking such as self-statements that involve blaming (“that jerk or bitch”); or catastrophizing, “I can’t stand it,” or mind-reading “she’s doing it on purpose”; or specific behaviors such as pacing, shouting, clenching fists.

2. Establish a Time Out signal.

Let your family know what your Time Out signal is that will alert them to your anger rising. This should be a neutral and nonblaming signal such as a T-signal with your hands or saying Time Out.

3. Decide where you will go.

Choose a location where you will go and that everyone else knows you will be. This should be agreed upon by both parents and children, otherwise it will be seen as abandonment and efforts will be made to restrain you.

4. Decide on duration of Time Out.

A time limit should be decided upon by the person who calls the Time Out. This person is responsible for signaling readiness to resume discussion. It should be understood that the discussion will always be resumed so Time Out does not become an avoidance tactic. (30 minutes or less)

5. Rules about Time Out

Rules about Time Out should be agreed upon such as whether the person can leave the house, go to a friend’s or call home. Drinking should not be allowed.

Problems with “Blowing off Steam” or “Getting it Out of Your System.”

It was once felt that blowing off steam by shouting and swearing would tend to drain off violent energy and reduce aggression. People were thought of as tea kettles which could only contain a fixed amount of aggressive energy and therefore it was necessary to open the kettle pot every so often. It is now well understood that rather than having a cathartic or beneficial effect, blowing off steam actually “inflames” aggression and violence. Studies have shown that couples who yell at each other do not feel less angry afterwards but more angry. Actually expressing anger will make you angrier! Fuming and criticizing legitimizes rage and increases anger. The reason for this is that often the anger is reinforced by giving the person a false sense of power, control over others (vs. defeat), making others pay attention or take us seriously, getting others to reply, or obtaining revenge. However, these are short-term effects. It is important to look at the long-term effects of anger as well. In the long term, because anger is frequently reinforced it is likely you will develop a “habit” of dealing with frustration by lashing out. Moreover, in the long term, parents who model angry outbursts make other people in the family angrier, defensive and fearful.
Substitute Coping Thoughts for Angry or Depressive Thoughts

Anger Cycle

- Messy living room
- Increased child misbehavior.
- Increased criticism, yelling, spanking.
- He’s impossible and lazy
- Negative thoughts: “He’s impossible and lazy.”
- Emotions of anger
- Physiological changes: blood pressure rises, etc.,

Depression Cycle

- Messy living room
- Increased child misbehavior.
- Increased emotions of depression and helplessness.
- Withdrawal from discipline.
- It’s my fault
- Negative thoughts about self: “I’m a terrible parent.”
- Increased criticism and spanking.

Positive Response

- Messy living room
- Decreased child misbehavior.
- I can cope...
- Increased coping response.
- Substitution of positive for negative thoughts: “I can cope—my job is to help him.”
- Decreased stress.

Brainstorm/Buzz — Self-Praise

Brainstorm possible self-praise you can use to encourage yourself as a parent. Write these statements on your note pad.

Positive Self-Praise

I can stay calm... he's just frustrated
I did a good job helping him with his homework
I was successful at paying my bills on time
I'm proud of how I helped...

Goal:
I will commit to stopping my self-criticism and looking at something I did well each day as a parent.
Write your own positive coping statements and practice them during the week.
Brainstorm/Buzz—Ways to Stay Calm

Remember, there is more than one way to think about something! A particular event can trigger some associated thoughts that lead to particular feelings and behavioral actions and resulting consequences. The same event could lead to different feelings in different people because of the thoughts associated with the event. While you can’t control your feelings, you can control your thoughts and the behaviors you exhibit in response to those feelings. Think about ways you can stay calm in a stressful situation by controlling your thoughts, imagination and your pleasurable activities. Write down ways you can stay calm and cope with distressful situations.

Ways to Stay Calm

- deep breaths
- positive forecasting
- relaxation techniques
- doing one of my pleasurable activities
- reading my positive journal
- exercising
- imagining my favorite person who is joyful
- getting more sleep
- think about a success rather than something unsuccessful
- challenging my irrational thoughts

Goal: I will commit to practicing the following to stay calm

- Interferes with problem solving
- Robs one of happiness
- Derails career
- Critical of self
- Poor relationships
- Alienates others
- Nonproductive
- Child/person afraid of me
- Instigates aggression

Positive Coping Thoughts
- I can manage my own behavior and not others’ behavior
- Things will get better in the future
- This happens to everyone at times
- Don’t believe everything you think!
- It’s not personal—all children do this at times

Feelings
- More calm
- Forgiving
- Compassion
- More in control
- Optimistic/humor

Behaviors
- Friendly/cooperative
- Respectful
- Get support
- Assertive expression
- Accepting of different values & respectful
- Deep calm breathing
- Compromise/problem solve possible solutions

Consequences
- More control of our behavior
- Respect from others
- Self-respect & less guilt
- Positive model for my children
- Supportive relationships
- Effective solutions

Thought & Feeling Diary for Coping with a Difficult Situation
Identify situations or triggers that make you angry or depressed. Work on replacing irrational or negative thoughts with positive opposite thoughts. Remember you can’t control what others do, but you can control your own behavior.

“There is more than one way to think about something—feelings don’t have to determine actions.”

Home Activities for the Week

To Do:

• PRACTICE expressing positive feedback or giving support to another adult during the next week.

OR

• PRACTICE asking for feedback when you are feeling defensive or when unsure what the other person is saying or how they are reacting to what you have said or done.

• PRACTICE making a request for help from another adult during the next week. Remember to be positive, specific, use “I” messages and to give clarification or feedback.

Keep track of the results of the first three exercises on Record Sheet Handout: Giving and Getting Support.

• RECORD (on the Parent Record Sheet: Sources of Stress) your daily stressors and plan a strategy to give yourself more support for these stressful times. Then try out your strategy and record what happens.

CALL your buddy this week. (You could do your practice with your buddy!)

ABOUT EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION

- Use “active” listening and encourage others to express their ideas and feelings.
- Speak up clearly with “I” messages (avoid “you” messages which tend to blame or criticize).
- Express your feelings about issues rather than storing up grievances, but remember to be considerate about when and where you speak up.
- Think about the other person’s needs and then validate their feelings and point of view (try to put yourself in their shoes).
- Avoid criticisms, gripes and put downs. Focus on being polite and positive.
- Stop discussion or take a short Time Out when confused, angry or when communication is breaking down.
- Focus on fixing the problem, not fixing the blame.
- Recognize that another person’s problem or feeling is always legitimate. Avoid denials and defensiveness.
- Ask for feedback in order to be sure you understand correctly. (Recognize your own as well as other “mood filters” and how they may distort communication.)
- Give clear and consistent verbal and nonverbal messages.
- Make positive requests and comply to other’s requests.
- Express positive feedback and feelings.
Describe your responses and the listener’s responses to the two exercises.

Think about 10 things you can do that bring you pleasure. These can include interactions with others that make you feel appreciated or understood, or activities that make you feel useful, strong, or valued. Write these activities down and give them one star*, two stars, or three stars according to how much enjoyment they bring you. Make a plan to do at least one of these each day and write it down on your calendar.

My Pleasurable Activities — Add Your Own

Calling up someone I enjoy talking to
Being with optimistic people
Meeting a friend for lunch
Exercising
Writing a card or e-mail in my happy journal
Listening to relaxing music
Grooming myself (doing nails, haircut, showering)
Getting or giving a back rub
Reading
Yoga
Cooking
Watching a Movie

Goal:

I will commit to doing something pleasurable for myself this week. This will include:

Brainstorm/Buzz—Praising Family Members & Friends

Brainstorm statements you can use to praise, encourage and support other family members (partners, grandparents, friends) in their interactions with you or your children.

Interactions I will encourage in others

Helping put out garbage
Making dinner

I will commit to increasing the number of encouraging statements I give others each day.

I like it when you…

Good for you! for…

Wow! What a wonderful job you’ve done cleaning the shower!

Goal:

I will commit to increasing the number of praises I give my partner, friend, family member to __________. The behaviors I will praise include: (e.g., helping with household chores) ____________________________________________
